Job description

Trotzkind is a Berlin based content and technology studio for immersive media. In 2017, we developed HUXLEY, a location based multi-user VR game and one of the first VR Escape Rooms worldwide. In addition to many other nominations, HUXLEY won the German Computer Game Award 2018 for Best Innovation. This month our new game Selina: Mind at Large will come out on the Meta Store.

☐

We are looking for a Game Developer (mid to Senior level) (m/f/d).

☐

- Your responsibilities
- Programming game loops and additional modules.
- Developing and updating game architectures, making it expandable for future features.
- Implement gameplay features in close communication with the design team.
- Working on performance optimization for different XR headsets.
- Porting code to different XR platforms.

Your profile:

- Extensive experience developing games in Unity.
- Degree in computer science, game development or a comparable course.
- Capable of writing clean and well structured code.
- Very good understanding of video games and mechanics.
- Experience with XR and its specific demands as related to game development.

Bonus skills:

- Experience with character creation and motion capturing (Reallusion, Xsense or other).

- Experience with performance optimisation for mobile VR hardware.

- Interest in psychological topics.

What we offer:

- Work in a small team of passionate game developers with flat hierarchies.

- Great creative freedom and the opportunity to try out new technologies and pipelines in the XR sector.

- Great office in the middle of Berlin Friedrichshain
